All data shared within Veyra — such as medical records, reports, or communication between families and care staff — is stored securely and accessed only by authorized personnel according to their roles.

We use data encryption, secure authentication protocols, and role-based permissions to prevent unauthorized access or data loss.

Veyra does not sell, share, or distribute any personal or medical information to third parties. Data is processed exclusively to improve the quality of care, optimize communication, and ensure operational efficiency within elderly care institutions.
